

SOVIET RUSSIA LIKELY TO RESIGN FROM THE LEAGUE

Invaders of Finland Will Not Submit to the Indignity Of Expulsion

AWAIT MOSCOW REPLY

Special Committee Continues To Act Awaiting Reply
From Russia

By International News Service
GENEVA, Dec. 12.—Soviet Russia will resign from the League of Nations "rather than submit to indignity of expulsion," members of the Soviet delegation declared today, as the Assembly waited with undisguised pessimism the Moscow reply to its armistice proposal.

The delegation headed by Jacob Sur-ritz, Soviet Ambassador to Paris, has been in Geneva since the League session opened, but only in the capacity of observer.

While waiting Russia's reply, the special committee appointed to act on Finland's appeal for aid in resisting Soviet aggression continued its work.

The first portion of the report dealing with the Russo-Finnish situation was adopted by the Committee members with little argument.

Despite the implied threat of international punitive measures against the U. S. S. R. if Moscow fails to heed the League's best bid, diplomatic circles in Geneva had little hope that the Soviet would do more than reject or ignore the truce proposal.

Parliamentary Under Secretary Butler put the general impression of League diplomats into words when he commented that the League's committee was "under no illusion regarding results of its efforts."

Boy, 13, Admits Several Petty Robberies To Police

The police last night solved several petty robberies with the taking into custody of John Tison, 13, Grant avenue.

Tison after being questioned is said to have admitted taking $65 from the residence of Angelo Cianciose, 323 Grant avenue, on Sunday and also is alleged to have told the officers that he had been in the Cianciose house on two other occasions. Once he is said to have taken $7 and on another occasion got $2. Police also say that he told them that he had broken into the Mutual Aid hall and took cigarettes. On another occasion he entered the residence of Mrs. Mary Marsaglia, Lincoln avenue, and took $6, according to the statement.

When questioned by the police as to how he spent the money Tison said that he bought a watch, some candy

It's Not Only The Perfume They Object To

(By "The Stroller")

Word has reached Bristol that the Branch Valley Fish, Game and Forestry Association, in the central part of Bucks County, has offered a bounty for skunks.

And some residents of this section are silently applauding.

But it is not the fact that they are odiferous animals that makes the sportsmen desire their destruction, but the fact that the black and white "spiced pussies" lower the number of pheasants, eating the eggs; raiding barnyards, etc.

Both ears must be presented before the bounty money is paid. We wonder if the idea will spread to this section, and if so how many will go in search of skunk cars.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Forty-three dogwood trees were planted at Washington Crossing Park, during the Spring and Autumn seasons of 1939. The trees represent schools, and Scout troops of school age, throughout Bucks county.

Each child became a life member of The Bucks County Dogwood Association by securing and planting a young dogwood. The small sum included, also, his contribution toward the school tree, thus enabling him to take part in planting The Dogwood Trail between the two State parks, Valley Forge and Washington Crossing.

The school and scout trees occupy historic ground opposite Taylor's Island, near the spot where Washington crossed the Delaware on Christmas night, 1776, the eve of the Battle of Trenton.

Schools: Deep Run, Bedminster

ing, Upper Makefield township, Upper wick township, Pineville, Wrights-ley.

Boy Scout troops of school age: Croydon, Churchville, St. Francis, Line Lexington, Trevose, Edgely, Newport-ville, Bristol, Perkasee, Andalusia, and Morrisville.

J. Wilmer Lundy was re-elected president of the Newtown Welfare Association. Eugene Watson was named vice-president, and Miss Laura Riddle will again serve as secretary.
Mrs. Reuben P. Kester, Mrs. Horace A. Effrig, Mrs. Franklin Linton, Dr.
A. J. Strathe, and Peter Morris were named members of what is to be known as the working committee.

With most of the churches and civic organizations of the borough represented, the meeting was featured by reports of committees. The report of the treasurer revealed that the association had spent $38.41 for the filling of the Christmas baskets last year, and that $48.92 had been spent for emergency relief.

William J. Ellis and Charles Urban, who audited the account of the treasurer, reported having found it in good condition.

It was decided by the association to carry out the same plans as last year.
Containers will be placed in the stores and here persons interested in the work of the organization may make their cash contributions.

BRISTOL PSYCHOLOGIST ADDRESSES GROUP

Harold S. Storms Speaks At Meeting of Langhorne Parent-Teacher Ass'n

HOBBIES IMPORTANT

LANGHORNE, Dec. 12.—"There are not only problem children but there are problem parents as well, and that life itself is an adjustment problem," Harold S. Storms, clinical psychologist of the Bristol public schools, told the bi-monthly meeting of the Langhorne Parent-Teacher Association a few evenings ago when the group met here.

Mr. Storms spoke of the characteristics of problem children by quoting from the study by the Baker Foundation of 1,000 delinquents. Among other things, 979 of them had no hobbies, which led to the conclusion that one way to keep children out of mischief is to give them something to do. The need for getting a complete picture of the child by noting all facts concerning the home, school, social life, and environment by a clinical psychologist, was stressed, in order to determine causes of delinquency.

Joseph B. Shane, dean of boys at George School, spoke on the progressive education movement. He stated that education for democracy or for living will apply to this type of education better than the term given. In schools of this type, according to Mr.
Shane, the whole child is thought of, his interests and needs are determined, and then life situations are provided both in and out of the classroom to fulfill these needs. Experiences are lived and these are real to the pupil. All subjects are correlated so as to provide special training in those items requiring it.

Following the program sandwiches and coffee were served by the refreshment committee.

It was announced that discarded toys are to be sent to the high school building again this year for repair by the vocational pupils.

The prize of $1 to the room having the best attendance at the last meeting went to the fourth grade, of which Miss Ruth Ehrlein is the teacher.

The musical program was presented by Mrs. Verna Page Gamble, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Friedrich.

Submarine Saw Bremen

London, Dec. 12.—The German luxury liner Bremen, mystery ship of the new European war, was recently within firing range of a British submarine, it was officially announced today.

A brief communique issued by the Admiralty revealed that the liner had escaped destruction only because of Britain's sedulous regard for international law.

The communique said:
"A British submarine has reported that the Bremen passed within torpedo range homeward bound."

"The submarine was, of course, precluded by the rules of sea warfare from torpedoing the Bremen without warning."

There were no further details, but the communique officially disclosed for the first time that the Bremen had left her anchorage at Murmansk, Soviet Russia, goal of her journey when she slipped out of the New York harbor just before the outbreak of the war in September. It was assumed that the encounter between the submarine and the Bremen occurred somewhere in the eastern regions of the North Sea.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

Merry Manager Corcoran

Washington, Dec. 11.

THE real backstage manager of the third-term drive, now being so energetically promoted, is that gay young accordion player and brain trust-
er, Mr. Thomas Corcoran. The versatility of Mr. Corcoran is one of the things of which his friends are justly proud. Besides writing the President's fire-side chats, he is the inspiration of most inner-circle activities and the political master mind of his group.

FOR example, it was Mr. Corcoran, his admirers insist, who conceived the plan of the great primary purge of 1938, and induced Mr. Roosevelt to lead that ill-fated campaign to drive out of public life the Democratic Senators who had opposed his scheme to pack the Supreme Court. And it was Mr. Corcoran, too, who launched the unhappy candidacy of Solicitor General Robert H.

Jackson, whom it was first proposed to elect Governor of New York and then President.

BOTH of these movements were born in the fertile Corcoran mind and, with the President wholeheartedly co-operating, pushed to the bitter end without consultation with or consent from Mr.
James A. Farley, whose wisdom in such matters is pretty generally accepted. Both failed in an ignominious and complete manner.
One would suppose that those two rather disastrous experiences might have shaken the confidence of Mr. Corcoran and his friends in his political astuteness. On the contrary, the movement in which they are now engaged seems to them more sure of success and the Corcoran skill and subtlety more admirable than ever. It was Mr.

Councilmen See Police Radio Given Demonstration Here

Demonstration of a police radio and how it could be operated by the Bristol police department was given borough councilmen last night. The demonstration was given at the conclusion of the regular council meeting.

A radio receiving set was set up in the police department with an operator in charge.

A transmitter was placed in an automobile in which Officer Stackhouse and a representative from the radio company toured Bristol and the immediate vicinity as far as Edgely. As Officer Stackhouse and the radio man made their tour they transmitted their location to the municipal building, every few minutes.

The details of the equipment were explained and the councilmen asked many questions as to the advantages of having such equipment here. With the radio as a means of communication between the officers in a cruising car and police headquarters, both are kept in constant contact with each other.

As the police car toured around last night each location given by the officers came into headquarters almost instantly.

STEERING WHEEL QUIRKS

Experienced drivers have learned to let the man or woman in a car bearing the license plates of another state have a pretty wide berth on the road, and a study of the driving habits of automobile operators made by Yale University indicates that the idea is sound.

The survey revealed that of 700 drivers who had traveled 100 miles and still had another 100 to go their speed averaged better than 46 miles an hour. Of the drivers who had driven less than 20 miles and still had 20 or fewer miles to go the speed averaged less than 40.5 miles.

While the disposition of most persons is to be careful of borrowed things, not so with motorists. Investigation of ten different age groups disclosed that in all cases except those past 60 the borrowers drove faster than the owners. It works out this way: The speed of the average car owner is 43.9 miles per hour. His son averages 44 miles. Other relatives go at a rate of 42.5. But friends who use the car hit it up at 45.6.

There seems to be a regular falling off in speed as the age of the auto goes up. For a little more than a year the traveling is at the rate of 60 miles an hour. Then up to about two and one-half years it is lowered to 40. Cars above three years in use go along at less than 40 and more than 30, while the four-year-olds keep between 20 and 29 miles an hour.

Men from thirty-five to thirty-nine are the ones who push the car fastest. The low speed for this group is 20.3, while the top is 72 miles an hour, which works out for an average of 45.3. But the men from sixty to sixty-nine are not so far behind them. Their range is from 24.9 to 72, with an average of 42.5. All of the speeds were checked without knowledge of the drivers that they were being clocked, and then a mile away they were stopped and the data written on question blanks.

Such information as this may have some bearing on the problem of accidents, and it gives all car owners and drivers some facts to mull over.

Corcoran, for example, who induced Senator Norris to make his recent third-term statement, and it is Mr. Corcoran who is merrily mapping out plans for other explosions of a similar nature designed to remove the rocks in the road.

AND it is Mr. Corcoran—or, at least, so it is believed—who is inspiring the desperate effort now being made to woo Mr. Farley.

This the third-termers regard—and rightly—as more important than anything else. Because, unless, one way or the other, Mr. Farley can be wooed or won over, no "draft" such as the Corcoran group plans can possibly be made convincing. It may be successful in securing the nomination, but the connivance of Mr. Roosevelt can only be concealed by the co-operation of Mr. Farley. Up to date Mr. Farley's co-operation has been conspicuously absent, and unconcealed connivance is one thing the seeker after a third term clearly cannot afford. Thus it is easy to see how vital to the inner-circle strategists the wooing of Mr. Farley, with his popularity, political strength and convention influence, has become.

THE fact is that Mr. Farley's attitude on this subject is far more interesting and important than that of any other. It is to be expected that Mr. Roosevelt's job-holders, Ambassadors, political dependents and intimate friends should want to continue his regime. Practical unanimity among them is entirely natural, which makes the Farley position the more impressive. Here is a man whose personal loyalty and political services to Mr. Roosevelt are above question. As a member of the Roosevelt cabinet and chairman of the National Committee, in the first term Mr. Farley took a good deal of abuse, but has handled himself in such a way that today he has established a reputation in the country for high character as well as real capacity. Today, no one questions his conduct as an official or belittles him as an individual. Aside from Mr. Roosevelt himself, he is the most influential man in the Democratic party, worth a hundred times as much as all those who have come out for the third term combined.

ON that subject, though Mr. Farley has made no public statement, neither has he made a secret of his feeling, and no one has much doubt as to what it is—including Mr. Roosevelt. It seems to be Mr. Farley's conviction that for Mr. Roosevelt to seek a third term—even successfully to seek it—would be bad for Mr. Roosevelt, bad for the party and bad for the country. Probably what makes Mr. Farley so good-humored and tolerant concerning the third-term activities of Mr. Corcoran and his little band of palace politicians is his firm belief that Mr. Roosevelt entertains precisely the same conviction. If this is a correct diagnosis of the Roosevelt-Farley situation—and there is some reason to think so—the joke is certainly on the inner-circle boys.

SYNOPSIS

At Miracle Mesa, the Douglas ancestral estate near Mexico, a girl named Lola awaits the return of her fiancé, Jack Douglas, after an absence of six years. Lola is the adopted daughter of Jack's Aunt Ines. Her friend, Alison Neale, owner of the neighboring ranch, hopes Jack is the leader they are waiting for to fight the raiders. In an adobe up the trail two men also discuss Jack's return. "If you're wise you won't let Jack Douglas live two days once he comes back," says one. Next day, as Jack rides along the Verde Road with his companion, Ed Paxton, the latter pulls him into the shadow of a mesquite barely an instant before a band of horsemen come tearing around the bend. "Raiders!" Paxton exclaims. The marauders usually station guards along the way to ward off pursuit so, shortly after, when a lone rider arrives on the scene, Douglas believes it to be one of the guards and makes a flying tackle only to discover his victim is Alison Neale! She had been trailing the raiders and suggests that the men accompany her. Jack is willing but Paxton says it would be foolhardy. As the girl rides off in anger, Ed remarks, "I wonder just how much she really wanted us to follow that band." Later Jack arrives home and receives a warm welcome from his aunt. As he prepares to retire, he looks up to see Lola standing in the doorway. Jack enfolded her in his arms, whispering "Lola! Lola mia! How lovely you are!" In the morning, Dona Ines shows Jack the ranch's ledgers. It was face to face with failure. Later, Jack goes riding with Frank Baker.

CHAPTER VI

Out over the broad valley the two rode stirrup to stirrup, and Douglas found himself remembering the winding arroyos as he passed them, landmarks he had all but forgotten. Finally he asked, "How have things been with you, Frank?" Baker looked hesitatingly up, then as if overcoming some strong reluctance, he said, "Everything's wrong here. It's been wrong for two years now—ever since the copper boom brought that bunch of miners and half-breeds to Cobre. The miners have jumped the water-rights on a dozen ranches, and the cattlemen just take it. Everybody is laying down—everybody in the whole valley, but I think maybe we are the worst. First we left the Cobre gang cut our fences and use our waterholes just because we haven't the nerve to stop them. When the raiders started, we let them beat up our herders, order them out of the country, and tell us where to head in generally. I don't mean Paxton's yellow, but these things have got him down. What we need is—" With a gleam of white teeth the boy smiled up at him. "We need a he-man boss—we need you."

"How do you know I'm the one?" "You've got to be. Besides, I know you are. I haven't forgotten the way you made things stand around in the old days. It was the hope of your coming back here that's kept me going. I been telling the boys that when Jack Douglas gets back everything will be different. It'll put new heart into all of us; we'll find out where these ornery raiders hole up, and clean 'em out like you did those mine-jumpers years ago. We'll make that bunch of bums over in Cobre keep to their own range. Why, this valley could be the greatest ranching country in the world. Every man here would work his soul out for a real leader, but we've got to have somebody that's not afraid to come out and fight."

There was no mistaking the boy's earnestness, and a thrill passed through Douglas to know that in spite of dark years and threatening future something of that old unconquerable spirit still lived among his vaqueros.

"Where do these raiders hide out?" Douglas asked.

"That's the crazy part of it—nobody knows."

"But you can't hide a hundred horsemen in this country without somebody seeing them." "I know you can't. Yet that's exactly what happens." "Why not track them?" Baker laughed. "They only raid on nights of wind and storm, and their tracks lead out into the desert until every trace is blown away. I've suspected Cobre, but I been there often enough to know the only horses they have are a few broken-down broom-tails for the mine work."

With a sudden surge of feeling,

Douglas crossed the porch on tiptoe and looked in the window.

Douglas' arm swept out before him. "This land was my forefathers' land, Frank. Now it is mine, and I pledge you this—not so long as I live will I give up one square inch of Miracle Mesa. If the miners or these raiders want war—let it be war. For not while I live will I tolerate violence done to these people who are my people. Does that answer your question?"

Baker's eyes were shining. "It sure does! And once the boys know where you stand—"

But Douglas held up a warning hand. "Not yet," he cautioned. "Not until I am ready. Your great weakness, Frank, may be your lack of patience."

The boy flushed. "That's what Paxton says. Just the same, it's going to take something more than patience to cure our troubles. And down there may be something that's adding to our troubles." He pointed into a narrow canyon where a small adobe dwelling stood against the base of the cliff.

Douglas eyed it curiously. "That was not there in my day."

"It's the hold-out of the Brotherhood—their meeting place. Nearly every peon in the country belongs—they're afraid not to belong. It's been a bad thing for the valley. Every member gives his allegiance to the Brotherhood instead of to the man who pays him to herd his cattle or tend his ranch. All the old loyalty and trust are gone. I've learned a thing or two about that outfit."

Baker stopped. From out behind the cedars a tattered, barefooted peon came toward them carrying the long staff of a herder of sheep. Passing close to the two horsemen, he took off his hat and looked up.

"Buenos dias, señores," he saluted them in sing-song Spanish, and his eyes rested on Baker. Then he shuffled down the path.

To Douglas that sudden quiet emergency and the man's sharp glance evoked a vague feeling of disquiet, and he asked, "Who is he?" "One of our own herders," Baker nodded toward a small tent pitched on the opposite side of the knoll. "He stays there."

For several minutes Douglas' eye followed that retreating form, and at last he turned to his horse. "It was good to see you, Frank. I've got a long ride before me now, but to-morrow I will be at the upper ranch—we can talk more of these things." He held out his hand, and again he felt the firm pressure of the other's grasp.

ON that subject, though Mr. Farley has made no public statement, neither has he made a secret of his feeling, and no one has much doubt as to what it is—including Mr. Roosevelt. It seems to be Mr. Farley's conviction that for Mr. Roosevelt to seek a third term—even successfully to seek it—would be bad for Mr. Roosevelt, bad for the party and bad for the country. Probably what makes Mr. Farley so good-humored and tolerant concerning the third-term activities of Mr. Corcoran and his little band of palace politicians is his firm belief that Mr. Roosevelt entertains precisely the same conviction. If this is a correct diagnosis of the Roosevelt-Farley situation—and there is some reason to think so—the joke is certainly on the inner-circle boys.

MANHATTAN FIVE DEFEATS GRUNDY'S BY TWO POINTS

Nick Hufnell Scores Winning Goal in Last Minute
of Play

FINAL SCORE IS 30 TO 28

Game Was Cleanest Played In The League Thus Far

There was but one minute remaining to be played. The score was deadlocked. Nick Hufnell was in possession of the ball. Two players were guarding him and had forced him towards the side-lines. Nick did not have a chance to pass but did the only remaining thing, leaped up and let the ball go towards goal-land. The sphere hit the backboard and sank down through the nets for a Manhattan field goal.

That is the story of the two-points which caused the Grundy team to go down to its first defeat in the Bristol Basketball League last night. Final score was: Manhattan Soap, 39; Grundy's, 28.

Previous to the scoring of that field goal, "Hunkie" Gallagher, taking a pass from Betts had dropped in a long one to deadlock the score and before the final gun barked, both Johnny Zack and Billy Gallagher missed attempted field goals for the Grundy team to give the fans an added thrill.

The game was one of the cleanest played in the league thus far, only thirteen fouls being committed. Manhattan players had but four fouls called on them while Grundy's had nine. Each team had two conversions. Leading the Manhattan victory was Clyde Betts. Betts played the best game thus far this season. He was continually breaking up the Grundy plays and was the leader in the passing attack of the soap-workers. He did most of the passing which led to the scoring of field goals. When it came to the getting of the rebounds off the board, Betts was the leader.

Hufnell's five field goals enabled him to have the edge on scoring for the winners with Barretto and Gallagher being close behind. Buckman and Gallagher were high for Grundy's. The defeat to Grundy's put the soap-workers in a deadlock for first place with Profy's and Rohm and Haas following.

FALLS ALUMNI WINS OUT OVER PROFY'S FIVE

BRISTOL BASKETBALL LEAGUE
Results of Last Night Falls Alumni, 48; Profy's, 47
Manhattan, 39; Grundy's, 28

Coming from behind, the Falls Alumni five turned the tables on one of its opponents last night and finally won a game, nosing out the Profy quintet, 48-47. In a thrilling contest before a large crowd in the Mutual Aid hall.

Heretofore, the Alumni boys have been on the losing end of either one-point or two-point games. But, last night when Tim Tentucci's gun barked, signalling the end of hostilities, the Alumni boys were on the large end of a one-point score.

The winning double-decker was made by Freddie Brigg on a side shot, after Chewing and Cappello had let the score come to deadlock with long shots. Ray Dorsey made a foul for the Mill streeters before it was over but the one-point margin was good.

At half-time, the Profymen were in the lead, 24-14, and it appeared as if defeat number five was going to be chalked up against the boys of Mike DeRisi. But slowly, the Falls total began to mount and again it was Briggie and Chewing who were doing the scoring.

At the beginning of the fourth period, Dorsey began to slit the cords for the Falls team but after making three field goals in succession and putting the Alumni team in the lead, he was injured and replaced by Johnson.

The radolmen then lost Gus Carnvale via the personal foul route and before the game was over even lost Charlie Hughes. In the third period the clubs were working a tit-for-tat scoring system and at no time was either club more than three points ahead of its foe.

High scorer for the winning combination was George Chewing, former high scorer for the Lower Bucks League. He made six double-deckers and five fouls for 17 points. Charlie Hughes had 18 points to lead the losing contingent.

In field goals, Profy outscored the winners, 19-18, but the Alumni boys had their eye on the foul mark making twelve out of their fifteen tries, with Lovett having three out of three.

The triumph put the Alumni team in a deadlock with the Celtics for fifth place and as DeRisi put it last night: "Watch us climb."

Special Collection Will Aid Xmas Mail

"It is advisable to mail Christmas greeting cards the early part of next week in order to insure delivery in time for Christmas," states the postmaster.

Instructions given by the postmaster which, if followed, will aid greatly in facilitating delivery during the holiday season, follow:

Prepay postage fully on all matter.

The rates are as follows:
First class: Letters, and written and sealed matter, three cents for each ounce, except when addressed for local delivery; local letters, two cents an ounce. Air mail: The domestic rates of postage on matter carried by airplane including transportation to and from air mail routes are six cents for each ounce.

Other helpful suggestions given to those sending cards, letters and packages follow: Large numbers of Christmas greetings, mailed in unsealed envelopes at the third-class rate of postage, are disposed of as waste each year because they are undeliverable as addressed, due to removal of the addressee or other cause. Such greetings are not entitled to the free forwarding privilege accorded those mailed in sealed envelopes at the first-class rate and, consequently, the senders in many cases never know that the greetings were not received by the addressee. This would not occur if the greetings were mailed sealed at the first-class rate.

Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address or box or rural-route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them, except when bearing a printed label or endorsement, reading: "Contents, merchandise—Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary," together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled or endorsed are subject to postage at the letter rate. The name and address of the sender may be handwritten or typewritten on the labels.

Limit of size—Parcels may not exceed 100 inches in length and girth combined.

Limit of weight—The limit of weight of fourth-class or parcel post matter is 70 pounds for all zones, including Manila, Hilo, Cebu, Zamboanga, Davao, and Baguio, P. I., but parcels for other places in those islands may not exceed 20 pounds.

Permissible additions and enclosures—Parcels may be marked "Do not open until Christmas," this being permitted in order to encourage early mailing.

Written greetings, such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," and names, numbers, or symbols, for the purpose of description, may be enclosed with third- or fourth-class (parcel post) mail. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

Do not enclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcel to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first-class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third- or fourth-class rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels. (See art. 55, p. 18, July 1939, Postal Guide.)

Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

Stamps—Mails may save time by buying postage stamps in advance.

Special handling—Fourth-class matter only—Parcels of fourth-class matter, endorsed "Special handling" will be given the most expeditious handling and transportation practicable (but not special delivery) upon payment, in addition to the regular postage, of the following charges: Up to 2 pounds, 10 cents; over 2 pounds, up to 10 pounds, 15 cents; over 10 pounds, 20 cents.

Special delivery—The prepayment of the following fee on first-, second-, third-, or fourth-class mail entitles it to the most expeditious handling and transportation practicable and also entitles it to special delivery at the office of address: Up to 2 pounds; first class, 10 cents; second-, third-, or fourth-class, 15 cents; Over 2 pounds, up to 10 pounds; first-class, 20 cents; second-, third-, or fourth-class, 25 cents.

Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured. The fees are: For parcel valued not over $5, 5 cents; over $5 but not over $25, 10 cents; over $25 but not over $50, 15 cents; over $50 but not over $100, 25 cents; over $100 but not over $150, 30 cents; over $150 but not over $200, 35 cents. Return receipt 3 cents extra. All in addition to the regular postage.

Where to mail parcels.—Ordinary parcels, eight ounces or less in weight, may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over eight ounces cannot be mailed in street boxes. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter, should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations.

Shopping Inspiration Gained In Many Ways

tractively wrapped in holiday style, ready to have a card attached, has not resolved to attempt duplication. And the Bristol stores are well equipped to sell all manner and mode of wrapping paper, ribbons, cords, seals, tags, cards, decorative items, etc., to make the package doubly attractive to the one to whom it will be presented.

One has but to behold the display at Popkin's Shoe Store, 418 Mill street, to make a new resolution about preparation of packages for this Christmas. Some of the shoe and slipper boxes are wrapped in brilliant red paper with gold ribbon to tie it; others are completely encased in gold or silver paper, with contrasting cords. What a brilliant display such would make under any tree on Christmas morn! And for one answer to a gift problem may we pass on a suggestion from Popkin's window—blue velvet house slippers, fleece lined, with a portion of the fleece forming the narrow cuff. Zipper closing at the front make a neat and comfortable slipper of this model which boasts a one-inch heel.

For the home-maker, to make every Monday more of a holiday, Philadelphia Electric Company has among its
